

Without federal support, low-income students will not be able to keep pace with students that can afford devices and 24/7 wireless access and a new digital divide will emerge – a mobile divide